TECHNICAL ASSISTANT

Of myself

Since I was a boy, i've played team sports. I've quickly developed communication and team work skills, things that I see as a fundamental competence for the balance between life and job.

Those abilities were exploited through my young adult years working for McDonald's and for the government of my country, Argentina. I've learned to work under pressure, being part of different work teams, always keep looking towards to ensure the quality of my work.

My job now is to develop professional formation plans for companies and work cooperatives from the public sphere, while I co-direct my wife's own business.

I have studied English since I was a child and I have always had an easy understanding of the language. But I'm also trying to perfect it in the university.

I'm trying to understand even more the world that we live in. My mission is to improve it, to generate better tools for the people to live in better conditions. I want a better world for my family and myself, with quality jobs and life styles.

I am a professional of social relationships. I'm a polite person, a respectful human being with every one, no matter what the case or the person who am I dealing with. My chat skills and kind personality are my strongest tools when working with people to sell or provide a service. I am a success warrant if you decide to add me to your float.
